BRAYTON, 'BLIND BOSS' OF RHODE ISLAND, IS DEAD

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 23.—General Charles R. Brayton, known as "Blind" Brayton, died today at 8:30 o'clock. He passed away in the Rhode Island Hospital. He was seventy years of age and totally blind. Brayton was taken to the hospital on August 20 with a broken hip, the result of a fall in his office. Dr. Bunting declared, however, that death was due to diabetes from which General Brayton had suffered for several years.

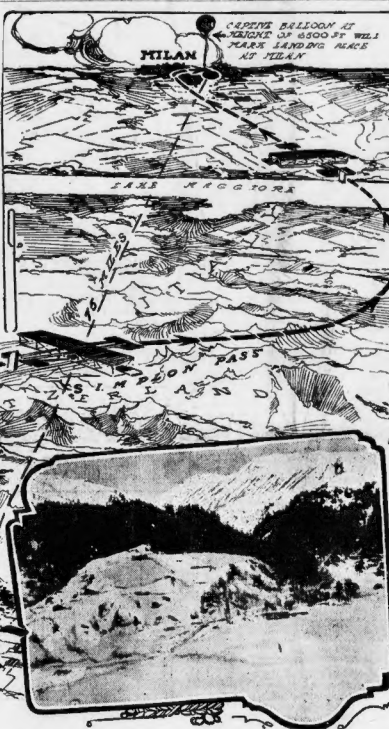

The "Blind" of Rhode Island had been living for some time with his wife at the Crown Hotel in this city. He did what he always declared he would do—work as the power behind the throne in Rhode Island politics right up to the time he was taken to the hospital.

It was declared today that the death of the old boss would disrupt the Republican party of the State. There is no man in sight to fill his shoes. (High Sheriff Hunter White was the most likely man for the job, but he died a few weeks ago.) Brayton had been totally blind for half a dozen years and had been partially blind for about fifteen years. The loss of his eyesight was caused by cataracts. Of no great importance was Brayton considered that one of the leading newspapers of this city bulletined his daily movements like this: 10:24 a. m. General Brayton arrived at the steps of the Rhode House. 10:35 a. m. General Brayton entered his office. 10:35 a. m. Mr. Smith contacts with the Blind Boss ten minutes, etc. Charles Ray Brayton was a lawyer by profession.

CHAVEZ LEFT AFTER GREATEST FLIGHTS

ROME, Sept. 23.—Two aviators today made a flight across the Alps, starting from Brig, Switzerland, following thousands of feet in the air, the path that Napoleon's army took on its march into Italy. The Peruvian birdman, was dashed into the rocks at Domocosa, after a flight of more than twenty-five miles. His monoplane was wrecked, and he is reported to be seriously, perhaps fatally injured. He was in the air forty-nine minutes. Ballette, after topping the peaks, descended at Stressa for a few minutes and then continued his flight to Milan.

AMERICAN FLIER HAS TROUBLE WITH MOTOR.

Weymann, the American aviator, who started his flight from Brig, Switzerland, today, had to descend immediately after the start and top the mountain wall on the opposite of the Rhone, 3,000 feet in height.

Weymann chose the route up the valley. One was as dangerous as the other. Both men planned to carry on a light weight, as possible, and with less provisions, to protect their motors and fuel from the intense cold of the high altitudes. The oil pipes were wrapped and the motors were tightly packed to prevent the fuel from freezing.

Planes and straw bales marked the route and air was available, but the aviators, containing doctors and medical supplies, were not able to reach the summit. They were forced to return to the ground. The flight was a failure, but the aviators were not discouraged.

$300,000 STATE ST. FAILURE

The National Mining Exposition Company, which has offices at No. 60 State Street, and a copper mine between that of the old Dominion and the Arizona Copper Company in Arizona, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy this afternoon with the clerk of the United States District Court, giving its liabilities as $283,000.00 and its assets as $23,000.00.

MAN MANGLED BY ELEVATOR

A man who is said to be James W. Kilpatrick of Somerville was caught between the elevator door and cage in the Tremont Building at 1:30 today. His body was badly mangled. He had to be dropped out of his person. He was hurt to the ribs. The police are working on the case.

There is no such person as James W. Kilpatrick in the Somerville city directory.

FARRELL LOOKS INTO "YANK" CONTROVERSY

CLEVELAND, Sept. 23.—Frank Farrell, owner of the New York Times, arrived here today and immediately commenced an investigation of the "Yank" controversy. It was reported that the investigation would not either be terminating and leaving a check for the balance of the baseball season or the dropping of Manager Stallings. Ray Johnson, president of the American League, was expected to make a hand in the investigation and the conference attending it.

GIVEN 30 MONTHS FOR KNIFE ATTACK

Glenn DeVito of the North End was sentenced to two and one-half years in the House of Correction today by Judge DeLoach in Superior Court, for assault with a knife. DeVito was charged with attacking a woman in the North End. He was given 30 months for the attack.

BIG STORES

In yesterday's American, one of the big department stores advertised for "Glove Salvage." Nearly every day you will see in the "Help Want" columns a request for experienced and competent help from the "Big" stores. The classified ads of the American are used because they bring the most intelligent people before the men who pass upon their fitness.

The Classified Ad. Department of the American is the People's Own Market Place.

SUNDAY BALL PLAYER GUILTY TAKES APPEAL

Eugene J. O'Connor, forty-eight of No. 20 Homestead street, Roxbury, who attempted to play a ball game last Sunday in Penn Park, Jamaica Plain, but was stopped by the police and arrested, was found guilty by Judge John Perkins, Jr. in the West Roxbury Police Court today. At the request of counsel, sentence was suspended until tomorrow.

The technical charge against O'Connor was that he "unlawfully took part in certain games, sports and play, thus and have played with a ball and a ball bat, and there any House of authority as to do according to law."

O'Connor had advertised a game to be played at the park, but when he arrived there Sunday he found twelve policemen in charge of Captain Harriman. Instead of playing the game, O'Connor caused the thousand spectators with him to be arrested by the police. When Captain Harriman thought that the Sunday law had been violated he arrested O'Connor.

WOMAN FLIES DURING STORM

Helene Dutree, the French aviatress, who is noted for her fearlessness, made a flight in her Santos-Dumont monoplane here to-day in a gusty wind storm which threatened every minute to drive her frail craft to earth. Miss. Dussere holds a record for her sex. On September 2 she drove her plane, carrying a passenger from Orono to the City of Bangor where she circled the tower of the celebrated temple of Les Halles at an altitude of 1,000 feet.

STYLE IDEAS FOR MISS AND GIRL READERS

New Fall Suit Models

As is seen in the illustration, this model is a complete departure from the lines of last year's suits.

New Fall Tailored Suits

School and college girls generally agree upon the strictly tailored suit because of its appropriateness. We make them with a view to fit, service and shape-retaining qualities.

15.00

New Fall Mixture Coats

The new coat styles are of special interest as October approaches. We describe one number and price it specially for this week's end.

15.00

New Fall Separate Skirts

Since the separate skirt is so often the first garment thought of on a change of season, we have prepared many very attractive numbers. Here is one example:

7.50

Wool Dresses for Girls

The cashmere in these looks like high cost materials. Read the description:

3.50

Serge Dresses for Girls

Here is a garment that can be worn in all kinds of weather and always looks neat. The cut merely suggests its design.

5.95

Girls' New Wash Dresses

Out of eight styles in repp and galteen dresses not shown in other stores we tell about this one because it is so pretty and better quality than mother could make at home at the same price.

1.95

We Have Been Saying to Fathers and Mothers.

Have Your Children Grow Up in LITTLE WONDER Shoes

BECAUSE 1—They represent a more complete range of styles and ideas than any other child's shoe made.

BECAUSE 2—They positively cannot be bought elsewhere under this or any similar trademark.

Desperate Desmond

Claude has escaped from prison disguised as part of a wagon load of crushed stone. Our hero is taking awful chances going through the streets in that prison suit, but he'd do anything for sweet Rosamond. Pipe the evil snarl on Desmond's mug. There's trouble ahead for Claude.

The hair restorer is great stuff. The manufacturer offered us eight million dollars if he would put his name on the bottle, but we refused. We don't want these flowing locks to get too common.

The authorities are on little Claude's trail, and if he don't watch out he'll get pinched. There haven't been so many escapes from prison lately that the keepers are getting peevish about it.

They know our brave hero is in that cave, but they also know that there is no other entrance. All they have to do is sit tight and wait for him to come out. Looks like a cinch, don't it?

Who said Claude wasn't clever? He's made that prison suit into a bathing costume. Some class to that, eh? But how is he going to get back to town and his own clothes? That's another story. See the next pictures.

The Country Boy

A Romance of the Stage from Behind the Scenes

"What do you suppose I am saying about?" he inquired.

"When two people love," said Tom, solemnly, "the slightest relation is marriage."

"Correct," agreed Tom. "Obligate marriage."

"We've never discussed that part of it have we? Jane's brow grew very big and round, and the dimples had vanished.

"It's always taken for granted," said Tom.

"But we've never discussed it," she protested. "In fact, I don't think that you've ever asked me to marry you."

"If I have it was an oversight," said Tom, lightly.

"But I look that for granted," said Tom.

"Good Heaven, Jane," exclaimed Tom. "It seems to me that I've asked you a million times, surely at the costume."

The Crisis in Her Life

"I understand perfectly," she said. "It's been that way ever since we were children. I never thought of any one else, and I don't suppose that you have, and we are no longer children. We have grown up, and must now face the future, you see, Tom, a woman grows old more rapidly than a man. Perhaps she is born to."

"At any rate, she reaches the crisis of her life long before the man does, and she's reaching mine now."

"What do you mean by crisis?" Tom asked.

"The sudden revelation of maturity was quite beyond him. But this morning Jane was a full-blown village girl, ready to receive the beauty of the world and of life. New she was looking him like the face of a person whose life she could not live. How was he to know the answer in this metaphysical calculation?"

"I mean marriage," said Jane, quietly.

CHAPTER VI

"Go Out and Make Good"

Tom was beginning to understand. "It may not sound modest to talk like this," Jane continued, "but I have my mother to go to."

There are 3 Features in rawford Ranges

which make them superior to any others

1. The Single Damper
2. The Oven heated by cup-joint flues
3. The Two Hods in the base

Either of these features is worth the price of the range. The Single Damper is the greatest help in cooking ever invented. One motion—push the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check"—the range does the rest.

The Oven is heated by the cup-joint flues all over alike; no "cold corners," no "scorching spots." Quickest and surest baker.

The Two Hods in the base (patented) is a wonderful trouble-saving feature. The ashes fall through a chute into a Hod which is easy to empty. The Coal Hod is beside it.

Gas Ovens and Broilers for end or above range if desired.

Welcome News of Mr. Gaynor's
Complete Recovery

It Gives Greatest Satisfaction to Everyone. The Thread of Political Discussion Is Now Resumed

Mr. Hearst's New York American yesterday printed the following editorial:

Mr. Gaynor has announced to the public—by a return to his well-established campaign methods—the fact that his health is entirely restored.

He promises to return to the City Hall within a few days, to explain the shameful conditions which have been unearthed by John Purroy Mitchell, temporary Mayor, and to inaugurate an energetic campaign for the governorship.

This newspaper rejoices in Mayor Gaynor's recovery, since that recovery justifies and calls for a resumption of the frank discussion of political affairs, temporarily interrupted by the deep sympathy universally felt for the victim of a cowardly assassin's bullet.

Mr. Gaynor announces himself a candidate for the governorship of New York State. That interpretation is universally put upon a letter which he issued—a letter which was published completely in to-day's New York American.

Concerning Mr. Gaynor's letter, we have to say that it is in keeping with his character. It is his second attack upon this newspaper and upon W. R. Hearst.

The first attack was made at a public banquet, when Mr. Gaynor denounced this newspaper and W. R. Hearst because of this newspaper's statement that Gaynor had paid $48,000 of the city's money to Dan Cohan, the Tammany man who nominated him.

The reply to this attack of Mr. Gaynor's was complete. It was proved that HE HAD PERMITTED PAYMENT OF $48,000 OF CITY MONEY TO MR. COHLAN AFTER THE MAYOR THAT PRECEDED HIM IN OFFICE HAD REFUSED TO PAY THE MONEY.

Mr. Gaynor's speech, in which he hid behind a social gathering to make his attack, was as usually as it was futile.

We regret to say that his present method of attack, in which his own sister is used as the agent for the distribution of calumny, is even less manly than the former attack.

It will prove as futile. Careful study of Mr. Gaynor had not given us a high opinion OF HIS CHARACTER. But we should not have thought that he would utilize the affection of a sister to make that sister a party to a subterfuge. There isn't a man in New York who doesn't know that that letter was given out by Mr. Gaynor's order, "ON CONDITION," AS THE EVENING POST STATED, "THAT NOT A WORD OF IT BE OMITTED."

Mr. Gaynor wrote his letter, and selected his own sister as the partner of his political enterprise, believing that he would minimize or perhaps prevent opposition to his plan, which is to have the Tammany organization, which made him Mayor, now make him Governor of New York.

Mr. Gaynor was mistaken in his hope. He will not escape frank discussion, nor plain truth telling.

Such plain truth telling was not STOPPED by this newspaper, but only INTERRUPTED, while we believed that the man was lying helpless as the result of a vile attack upon him.

That attack was made by one of the Tammany crowd, by one of the innumerable parasites put upon the public payroll by the ORGANIZATION for which Mr. Gaynor stood sponsor.

Mr. Gaynor's suggestion that this Gallagher, this drunken Tammanyite and thug, was driven to his deed because Gaynor had refused to stop an exhibition of prize fight pictures, is too ludicrous even for little children.

And nobody knows that better than Mr. Gaynor.

Our readers will notice that we have waited for Mr. Gaynor himself to give the signal for a renewal of the proper public discussion concerning his official acts—concerning his claims upon the public confidence. A man who is well and strong enough to devise a cunning plan in which a pretended private family letter is used as the agent of a slander is well and strong enough to hear the truth about himself.

The truth about Mr. Gaynor is that his nomination for Mayor was procured in an unworthy manner, and that many of his acts as Mayor have been unworthy. He is absent from his office but a few weeks, and John Purroy Mitchell, an honest man elected to office BY INDEPENDENT VOTERS, REVEALS THE MOST SHAMEFUL STATE OF CORRUPTION IN THE POLICE DEPARTMENT—AND THE ONLY REPLY WHICH MR. GAYNOR MAKES IS TO FORBID THE TEMPORARY MAYOR TO REMOVE THE COMMISSIONER.

Mr. Gaynor is gone from his desk but a few weeks, and the same John Purroy Mitchell proves that vice, immorality, gambling—all the viciousness upon which Tammany has fed for years—has been flourishing under Gaynor, as it had not flourished for fifteen years past.

John Purroy Mitchell's exposures prove clearly that the Tammany which elected Mr. Gaynor has, during Mr. Gaynor's administration, MADE OUT OF VICE AND CRIME THE INCOME THAT HONEST MEN ELECTED TO THE OTHER OFFICES BELOW MR. GAYNOR WOULD NOT ALLOW TAMMANY TO MAKE THROUGH THEM OR WITH THEIR CONIVANCE.

It is not the intention of this newspaper to permit Mr. Gaynor to carry out his ambition to be Governor without the plainest truth-telling and the frankest discussion.

Concerning his opinions or his statements we care nothing.

We printed, not quite a year ago, his statement in the Brooklyn Eagle of October 7, 1909, in which this same Mr. Gaynor said of the same W. R. Hearst—LESS THAN ONE YEAR AGO—WHEN HE HOPED THAT HE COULD COAX MR. HEARST INTO SUPPORTING HIM:

"I value Mr. Hearst's support more highly than I can express," said Mr. Gaynor. "He knows me and does not doubt me. He has done great good in this community, and it never will be lost. As a rule, it is not those who attain public office who do the most good."

We care as little for Mr. Gaynor's praise as for his blame—and what we say of him applies to all the other men in public office concerning whom it is our business to tell the truth as the truth appears.

We say now what we have said before, that we believe that Mr. Gaynor deliberately permitted payment of $48,000 of public money to Dan Cohan, of Tammany Hall.

We declare that we have proved that he permitted payment of this money to the man that was most influential in giving him the nomination for Mayor.

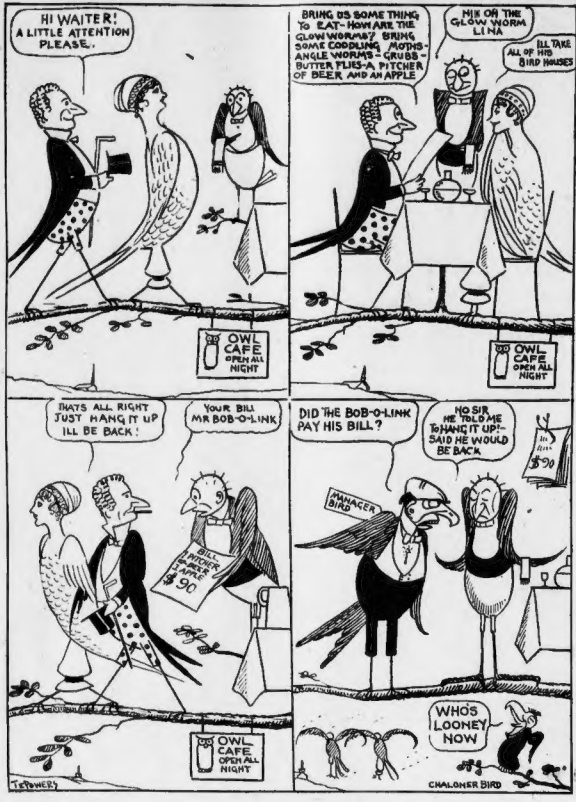

We assert that this payment WAS REFUSED BY MR. McLELLAN, REFUSED BY THE MAN WHO PRECEDED IN OFFICE MR. GAYNOR, AND BY JAMES J. MARTIN, THE MAN WHO PRECEDED MR. GAYNOR'S MAN HYDE AS CITY CHAMBERLAIN.

We care little for Mr. Gaynor's attacks, for Mr. Gaynor's praise or blame, as we care as little for the rabble of journalistic parasites that bark and snap with him.

It is the duty of a newspaper to speak the truth, to tell the people what their public men and candidates are doing—and we propose to do that duty.

That has been the policy of this newspaper in the past and it will be the policy in the future.

We believe that Mr. Gaynor is unworthy. We welcome his attack, and his own condemnation of our belief that the time has come to resume frank discussion of public matters and frank description of William J. Gaynor.

Good Health for Seventy Years

By Dr. H. W. WILEY

THERE are plenty of ways of keeping warm besides the burning of coal. After coal has been placed on the shelf as a curiosity, science will be supplying us with numbers of means now unknown of warming the houses and turning the wheels of commerce.

We do not use our water power; we do not use our air currents; the sugar and alcohol in our cereals is left to dissipate into thin air in our fields. If these things alone were used they could turn every weed and waste every house in the land.

But the greatest national resource we have is our health. It is not important that everybody should live and live in the possession of good health. Good health means power to do something. There is a great money loss in ill health. But the money loss is nothing. We do not wish to be healthy in order to make more money, but to be of greater use to others and to the community. We wish to be in a greater degree a nation of happy, useful citizens, enjoying life and the use of our health.

The superiority of the Japanese soldier lay in the wonderful health he possessed, and it was noted that whereas other nations could count on their armies all ways as units for service on account of ill health the Japanese could always count on their full strength.

The reason was that they sent bacteriologists and chemists in advance of their armies, and every spring or source of water that was impure was marked as undrinkable, and this simple safeguard and the same thoughtful care in their hospitals reduced their sick list to almost nothing.

One of the problems for study is not to prevent death, but to prevent people from dying from avoidable diseases. We should count to the end naturally and not have our usefulness cut short by an unnecessary death.

Cast your eyes over the list of deaths published in the newspapers and you will find that many of them are deaths from avoidable diseases which were preventable in the neglect of the community. We must confess that we are homicidal, and that most of us die from our environment.

Water is the natural sewerage of the earth, and it is apt to be dirty, which is very different from the popular supposition as to regard to it. It is an accident if it is pure, and the filthiest population that dirtier the water. Not only is this true in localities, but water flows from State to State, and never mind how careful a State may be in these matters if a neighbor is so careless it is impossible to stop the unsanitary pollution. It is a national-wide problem, and there is but one way to handle it—the unification of all activities that promote public health.

Forty years ago Vienna was scourged by a plague of typhoid, and they built a pipe line to the Alps, 125 miles away, and carried the pure water of the mountain down and brought it to the city. Today, they have no typhoid there.

People today are more afraid of bugs than of the more potent evil of foul air. In the olden days they used to think that the night air was unwholesome. What should we breathe if not night air at night? What we need to breathe is day air. We need to breathe day air. We need to breathe day air. We need to breathe day air.

The remedy is pure air. Unlike water, pure air or the lack of it, is not a public crime; it is an individual or family crime, for it can get it if it wish.

We have reached the age of conservation, and the most precious asset of the nation is its health. Let us cease that of our health. Let us cease that of our health. Let us cease that of our health. Let us cease that of our health.

Let us have a healthy people, and we will have a healthy nation. Let us have a healthy people, and we will have a healthy nation. Let us have a healthy people, and we will have a healthy nation. Let us have a healthy people, and we will have a healthy nation.
